Five Quick Points about New Mexico Concealed Handgun Refresher or Recertification

1. It is a requirement to maintain the State of New Mexico Concealed Carry Weapons (CCW) permit by attending training every two years. The requirement for classroom may be online (home) or in person at the range classroom.

2. A new licensee's first required training after two years is a refresher (The legal term used in the law). The second training after four years is defined as a renewal (legal term). The renewal includes a background check update and renewal fee paid to the New Mexico Department of Public Safety (NMDPS).

3. Live fire range testing can be completed in two hours or less time. The handgun live fire qualification is scenario based conducted inside 7 yards shooting 25 rounds. Awareness, communication, avoidance, barriers and handgun safety are priority topics in the basic course of fire.

4. Advanced refresher and renewal courses are recommended to exceed the minimum standards in the CCW law. Deepening your skills to a high level and meeting new challenges presented in the advanced courses will give you experiences that will last a lifetime.

5. The renewal licenses take about three weeks to arrive from NMDPS. You can take the training up to 60 days before your expiration date.

When the license expires you may not carry concealed in the general public. After 60 days expired a new license has to be applied for. Previous students in our program need only take the renewal program to apply for a new license. Credit can be given for previous classroom training we have witnessed from those attending our Initial (first time) concealed handgun course.
